

“WOAH!” I gasped, “This is so not what I was anticipating.” I was expecting to see old fancy dresses, Christmas decorations and an ancient item like a ring that had been passed down throughout our beloved family’s generation, just like my basement back at our fresh new house, which is quite cozy. However, when I carried on cautiously making my way through the cardboard boxes, I was more surprised. It looked like my aunt is very fit and healthy because there was the newest exercising kit and golden weights. And many more different items from decades ago.